Happy Thanksgiving

The Wakulla Senior Citizens Council held a Thanksgiving dinner on Wednesday, Nov. 16, for residents of Wakulla Trace apartments and invited county commissioners and other elected officials. Above, Wakulla Trace residents Flor Ledbetter, Donna Greer and Vicki Jenkins got traditional Thanksgiving turkey and dressing catered by Sam Dunlap of Seineyard restaurants. John Shuff, chair of the senior citizens council, noted at the dinner that the senior center now owns 100% of Wakulla Trace, and was greeted with applause from residents. (Photos by William Snowden)

NEW BUSINESSES

OSO Cycles opens

Local company sells e-bikes with 'HyperRange' to extend more than 100 miles

Special to The Sun

The pressure is already mounting, and we're less than two months from the holidays.

What am I going to get my spouse?

Well, what if you found a gift that could do the following:

- Bring an outdoors-centric couple closer together
- Help the environment
- Keep you in better physical shape
- Provide maximum travel flexibility
- All while having great fun!

Now, what if we told you this present also supports the Wakulla economy and comes with upgrades that could literally change the way you look at travel?

Then let us introduce you to e-bikes and one local company's new "HyperRange" technology.

The "e" stands for electric, which means a battery can help you as much or little as you'd like with pedaling. Get a full work out or just feel the breeze in your hair as a battery powers your pedals for hours.

At Wakulla's own OSO Inventive LLC, you can purchase a fully functional e-bike -- or a husband-and-wife pair -- with a battery-assisted range of 40-50 miles. OSO's facility is right on the bike trail in Panacea and features local sales, service, and parts.

OSO was founded by Wakulla's own Allan Feifer and Steve Fults.

Feifer and Fults are entrepreneurs, inventors and cycling enthusiasts. Their question for e-bikes became: How far can you go?

"So many cyclists are limited by their endurance and have a fear of not being able to make the return leg of their trip," said Feifer. "E-bikes change that whole equation. Now, you can take the hilly route and not worry about running out of battery power."

E-bikes sales are soaring. In fact, between 2020 and 2023 and estimated 130 million e-bikes will be sold worldwide.

How about this stat: According to the Light

Electric Vehicle Association, more e-bikes were sold in this year in the U.S. than electric cars and plug-in hybrids combined.

E-bikes are truly altering the way people get around, but if you want a completely game-changing experience, check out the OSO's exclusive HyperRange e-bike tech-

Mike Carter, former county judge, passes

By WILLIAM SNOWDEN
Editor

Former Wakulla County Judge Mike Carter passed away last week after suffering a stroke. He was 80.

Carter was an avid outdoorsman who moved to Wakulla County because of its natural beauty.

He challenged then-County Judge Evelyn Flack in the 1978 election and she initially held a two-vote lead until the canvassing board reviewed the absentee ballots and determined that Carter won the election by two votes.

Flack challenged the inclusion of some of the absentees – at that point in Florida, voters could vote absentee only if they were not going to be able to vote at the poll on election day.

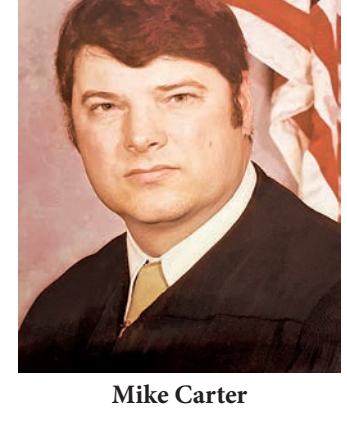

Flack's case went to trial and appeal and took 46 months to resolve: the courts determined that Flack won the election and she was awarded back pay.

Carter served as county judge until 1990 when Jill Walker was elected.

Carter then went into private law practice in Crawfordville before retiring.

He was one of the founders of the Wakulla Mens Club, as well as Wakulla Academic Boosters, a scholarship organization.

A full obituary appears on Page 12.

Canvassing board verifies election results

By WILLIAM SNOWDEN
Editor

The members of the Wakulla Canvassing Board met on Friday, Nov. 18, to verify and submit to the state the official results of the Nov. 8 election.

There were no changes in the outcome, but the canvassing reviewed and confirmed write-in votes. Of the 15,113 ballots cast in the election, there were 41 ballots with write-ins. The board verified that 4 votes were cast for write-in candidate Patricia Dyszer in the county commission district 4 race, and one vote was cast for U.S. Senate write-in candidate Edward Gray.

Other ballots included names not recognized as legitimate write-in candidates – or no names at all, where voters filled in the oval that said Write-in, but then left the line blank.

Two voters cast votes for candidate John Quinton in the county commission district 2 race and then wrote-in the name of district 2 candidate Fred Nichols in the district 4 race. (Nichols overwhelmingly won the district 2 race; and Quincee Messersmith was re-elected in the district 4 race.)

One voter wrote-in "Jesus" on the ballot.

The canvassing board consists of Supervisor of Elections Joe Morgan, County Judge Jill Walker, Tax Collector Lisa Craze and Randy Merritt in his final duties as a county commissioner. He did not seek re-election after 12 years and finishes his duties on Monday, Nov. 21 when the canvassing board does a required recount of one race in one precinct.

Flower of the Week at Sopchoppy Depot Park Variableleaf & Narrowleaf Sunflowers

By LYNN ARTZ and SANDY TEDDER

Florida is home to over 20 native species of sunflower. Variableleaf sunflower (Helianthus heterophyllus) is still displaying its large yellow flowers along the south side of the pond at Sopchoppy Depot Park. Also called wetland sunflower, this long-lived perennial has few leaves on its stem and grows to 4' tall. It is found in the Florida panhandle and elsewhere in the southeast. The more common narrowleaf sunflower (Helianthus angustifolius) occurs throughout Florida and much of the southeastern U.S. in moist to wet areas. Also called swamp sunflower, this native grows 4-6' tall. If you've seen yellow, daisy-like blooms in the roadside swales of Wakulla County this fall, you've likely seen narrowleaf sunflowers. This species recently finished blooming at Sopchoppy Depot Park.

Things to know about your homestead exemption

By ED BRIMNER
Property Appraiser

"Almost everyone knows about their homestead exemption, but they may not know all of the other benefits of having homestead exemption," says Ed Brimner, Wakulla County Property Appraiser.

Having homestead exemption is important to homeowners for tax purposes. However, it provides additional benefits that are just as important. The most well-known rule for those who have a homestead is the "save our homes" rule.

This rule limits the yearly increase of the homestead's taxable value to 3% or the cost-of-living rate, whichever is lower. Having homestead exemption also protects your property from seizure by creditors.

Save Our Homes

While there are several additional exemptions available to qualified homeowners, it all begins with the most important -- homestead exemption.

This is available to all homeowners who own or are purchasing their home and are using the property as their primary residence.

Permanent residency in the homestead must be established by January 1 of the tax year to begin the benefit, and the homeowner should not be receiving a homestead tax benefit from another property within Florida or the United States.

Receiving homestead exemption immediately reduces the taxable value of the property by up to $50,000, which in 2022 equated to over $650 in tax savings for the homeowner. Additionally, the "Save Our Homes" rule will apply which stipulates that the homestead's taxable value cannot increase by more than 3% each year or by the rate of inflation - whichever is lower. Please note that this limit applies to only the assessed value for homestead and not the rate of taxes. Also, the BOCC or School Board can increase the tax rate which is not controlled by homestead.

Save Our Homes also offers "portability". If you sell your homestead and purchase a new homestead of equal or greater value, the property value increase of the old homestead that isn't taxed due to the 3% cap, can be carried over to your new home. Overtime, this benefit can lead to a significant savings in property taxes.

As your Property Appraiser, I am bound by law to appraise your property at just market value as of January 1st of each tax year. Your taxable value is your just market value less any assessment cap limitations and homestead exemptions, as well as additional exemptions you may qualify for.

To receive these benefits of homestead exemption, come by the Wakulla County Property Appraiser's Office to complete a simple application. A member of our staff will be available to assist you and answer any questions. My office is constitutionally mandated to ensure that you receive all exemptions that you are entitled to receive. Homestead applications must be submitted by no later than March 1st after the year you purchased the home to be used as your homestead. Detailed information on homestead exemptions, additional exemption benefits, TRIM notices, and tax bills, as well as a tax estimator, are available on our website at www.mywakullapa.com. You may also view property records and valuation information on our site and complete an application for homestead exemption online.

Protection from Property Seizure

A benefit most people don't know is that Homesteaded property cannot be seized by creditors. There is no limit on the value of the property for this protection to apply. (Note - this protection does not apply to a real estate loan on the homesteaded property.)

Here is an example - if someone has a large credit card debt, the debt collectors cannot seize the homesteaded property due to non-payment. If any action concerning your homesteaded property is threatened by a debt collector, I recommend contacting an attorney immediately.

My office is here to serve you. If we can be of assistance, please do not hesitate to contact us at 850-926-0500, or stop by to meet with a member of our staff. You can also visit our updated and continuously improving website for information associated with your property in Wakulla County at www.mywakullapa.com.

LETTERS FROM READERS

Why no environmental education in region?

Editor, The Sun:

As an environmental educator, teacher and naturalist, I have noticed that there is a major disconnection between people and nature. This disconnection is not beneficial to our society. Either to children or adults. The results of this disconnection contributes to society's many mental and physical maladies in today's world.

The average child today spends 6 minutes a day outside. Yet 7 hours a day inside on electronic devices. Adults are also in this same category.

Why is there not a place in Wakulla and Leon county where children, adults and families can go to learn about our vastly disappearing natural world? A nature/interpretive center to address this void in our area? Gainesville has such a center. Jacksonville has such a center. Tallahassee with 3 colleges/universities and the capital of Florida does not.

Wakulla County, according to County Commissioners, is comprised of 68% of public land. Leon County, although being developed at a fair pace, is still comprised of "green areas."

In 2022, I approached Wakulla County politicians, the Tourist Development Council, Wakulla Environmental Institute (TCC), community leaders, Wakulla Springs, Gulf Specimen Marine Lab and others about a possible wildlife festival and environmental education center. There was little interest in these beneficial ideas which will benefit our area and address this void.

In 2022, I contacted Mayor Dailey and all the Tallahassee City and Leon County Commissioners about the lack of an environmental education center in the Leon County area. I did not receive one response from anyone!

I recently conducted a 6 week environmental education program series at FSU for adults. The results were outstanding! We will continue the series next spring/summer. The adults have the voting power but our youth is the future!

Do any of you have any ideas about the contents of my e-mail and who to contact about the many opportunities to establish this concept to benefit our local communities? If so, please contact me at your convenience. We need to reconnect people with nature for the benefit of us all and future generations.

Respectfully,

Jerry Walls
Crawfordville/Tallahassee

Holiday alert!

Editor, The Sun:

There is a woman at large who MUST BE STOPPED. She's known to run amok about this time every year spreading tidings of discomfort and stress. She is reported to be charmed and dangerous to our Christmas Spirit.

She was last spotted in the minds of women who go through the holidays feeling frazzled, frustrated and panicked. This imaginary vixen, lives in our heads and tries to brainwash us to believe that in order for our loved ones to have a very merry Christmas our homes have to be impeccably decorated, trees artistically trimmed, the most perfect presents purchased and wrapped for everyone on our list, and holiday cards with hand-written notes finished by early December.

Have you seen this woman? If so, you MUST stop her.

Here's what you can do. Complete all the preparations you want in celebration of the holidays, as long as... and this is the key.... you are doing them stress-free and continuously enjoying the magic of the Season. If not, then you must let go of what doesn't get done, and vanquish this demanding woman from your head. Then continue to celebrate the spirit and joy of the holidays, with a generous helping of fun added in.

Remember, the best gift you can give your friends and loved ones this year is your authentic self, the real you who offers comfort, joy, love and laughter to those around you just by being present, relaxed, and joyful yourself.

Wishing You and Yours a Very Merry, Magical and Joy-filled Christmas!

Riversink Elementary to host Autism Initiative

By MADELINE STOREY
of Wakulla Schools

With stiff competition across more than 15 counties, Riversink Elementary has been selected to participate in a yearlong project with Partnership for Effective Programs for Students with Autism (PEPSA) and the Statewide Centers for Autism and Related Disabilities (CARD). PEPSA is funded through Florida Department of Education K-12 Public Schools, Bureau of Exceptional Education and Student Services, and was introduced to educators and schools of students with autism spectrum disorder (ASD) in 1999. The local CARD office operates within The Autism Institute at Florida State University's College of Medicine.

Charged by Catherine Cutchen, Riversink Elementary has sought to build an exemplary program for Kindergarten- Fifth Grade students with autism. Cutchen worked closely with the classroom teacher, Madeline Storey, to build an environment tailor-made for each student who calls Riversink home. The classroom includes a sensory space with fidgets and gross motor activities, flexible seating options, and work cubbies to minimize visual distractions. The classroom utilizes quality evidence-based practices (EBP) like, token economies, behavior specific praise, visual schedules, social narratives, and modeling. The class also includes a dedicated staff of paraprofessionals, including, Sarah Moore. Moore is currently working to become a full-time teacher in the 2023-2024 school year.

The objective of the partnership is to develop and implement effective practices with the guidance and knowledge of a CARD Autism Consultants, Allison Leatzow. Leatzow will assist Storey in identifying areas of need, providing EBP that address those needs, review data collection, and provide support along the way. Leatzow will also train Moore in skills for preservice teachers. Moore will disseminate information throughout the support staff network and help with managing fidelity.

Both Storey and Moore will attend the annual CARD conference in January 2023. The conference will cover topics including, technology, emotional intelligence, and employment outcomes. In May, at the conclusion of the one-year partnership, Storey and Moore will complete a presentation outlining the findings. Opportunities for Action Research within education is important because as Geoffrey E. Mills explains, in "Action Research: A Guide for the Teacher Researcher", the true beneficiaries are the students in the classroom.

With the addition of OSO's HyperRange technology, the range for an e-bike can be extended to a staggering 180 miles!

A small generator, fueled by just a half-gallon of gas, is used to power the battery for an extended life that can bring all sorts of new destinations in play. For the 10 million or so Americans who have a "survivalist" plan, these HyperRange-fitted bikes can assure that you'll never be stuck in a mass automobile exodus.

And if you currently are an e-bike owner, OSO has a special kit that will allow you to retrofit your e-bike with OSO's Hyper-

Range capabilities.

"HyperRange is a total game-changer for cycling," said Fults. It's environmentally friendly and means your cycling range extends well past 100 miles."

Area law enforcement are already using the bikes and report back strong satisfaction.

Now, go ahead and check at least one gift off your list.

HOME ON THE RANGE

Girl shooting a black powder gun

By MARJ LAW

to go hunting. Before he leaves, Paw brings out his Kentucky pistol.

John says that shooting a gun is men's work. But he is wrong.

I'm 8 years old and I can learn too.

Paw and I sit.

"First, we'll rest the butt against the table," Paw begins.

"Ha-ha. Paw said butt!" snickers John.

"You're a butt!" I tell John.

"Enough!" When Paw uses that voice, I behave.

"See this? It's part of a cow horn. You pour black powder into the horn. Make sure you put enough so it's level with the top of the horn. Exactly that much. No more. No less. You pour this charge of black powder into the muzzle." He pours it in. Then he picks up a round piece of material.

"See this bit of pillow ticking? We call it a wad."

I look. Paw holds it. Then he picks up a small ball.

"Place this lead ball on the wad."

I do so. The wad is bigger than the base of the ball, and it wraps up around half the ball.

"Put ball and wad in the muzzle, wad side first. It fits tight, so push it with this. I call it a starter."

His starter is a tool having a short rod that has an indentation on one end. The indentation fits the curve of the lead ball. He gives a push and the ball is inside the muzzle.

"Now the ball has to go all the way against the charge which is down at the end of the barrel. You use this rod, called the ramrod. Make sure you push the ball every bit of the way down. The Kentucky Pistol is now loaded."

"Why doesn't the ball fall out?" I wonder.

"Between the ball and the wad, it's a tight fit. It won't come out until the gun is fired."

"Is that all there is to it?" I ask.

"No. Now we put a tiny cap on this thing that sticks up in front of the hammer. In order to do this, we have to pull the hammer back one click which is called the half-cock position. This allows us to access the nipple or the gun won't fire."

"I know what the hammer is!"

"He said the word nipple?" smirks John, but Paw doesn't hear.

Paw fumbles with the little cap and it flips to the floor. I race to pick it up.

This time he fits the cap onto the thingie.

"It's done!" Paw gets up and heads to the door. "Let's go! Time to shoot!"

"Kin I do it? Kin I shoot it?" begs John.

"No, this time is for Catherine. I want her to know how it feels when the pistol kicks."

"Ah, shucks. Girls shouldn't shoot," complains John.

"What's kick, Paw?" I wonder.

"When you pull the trigger, the gun jerks back toward you. You have to hold on tight. Don't let it knock you down."

Paw hands me the gun. He places my left hand on the foregrip and my right hand on the grip.

"You have to cock the gun by pulling back the hammer to the second click. That's full-cock. Don't put your finger on the trigger unless you are ready to shoot!" he warns. "Ready?"

I take a big breath and let it out.

"You'll fall over!" John

sniggers.

Oh, no I won't. I hold that gun very firmly. I stand strong and then I aim at an oak tree.

I squeeze the trigger.

Smack! The ball is in the tree! Yes! I do it and I don't fall over! I turn my head and stick my tongue out at John.

"Good shooting!" Paw is proud. He repeats the sequence of loading the gun, but this time, he allows me to do it. He warns me to leave the gun in the half-cock position. This way, the gun can't fire. I'll pull the hammer back to the second click, which is the full-cock position, when I am ready to shoot.

I place the half-cock loaded gun by the door. While Paw and John are gone, I'll be ready to grab it if I hear strange noises from the chicken coop.

That fox isn't going to get at Arabella, Mabel, Edith, Annie, Elizabeth, Gertrude or Alice.

Paw is never going to take me hunting like he does John. But some day, girls will be able to shoot guns and not just when the menfolk are off hunting.

Some day, girls will be able to hunt with their fathers. Some day, they'll even hunt by themselves.

I'm going to hide this diary deep into the eaves of the house.

Maybe some day, a long time from now, another woman will read my words.

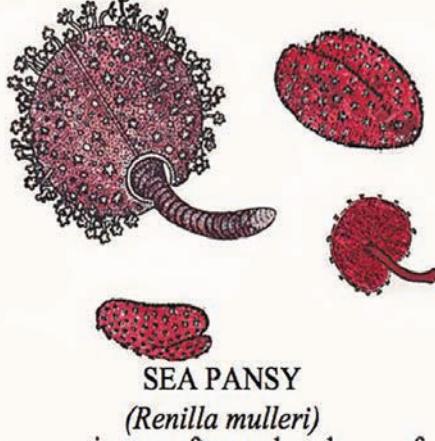

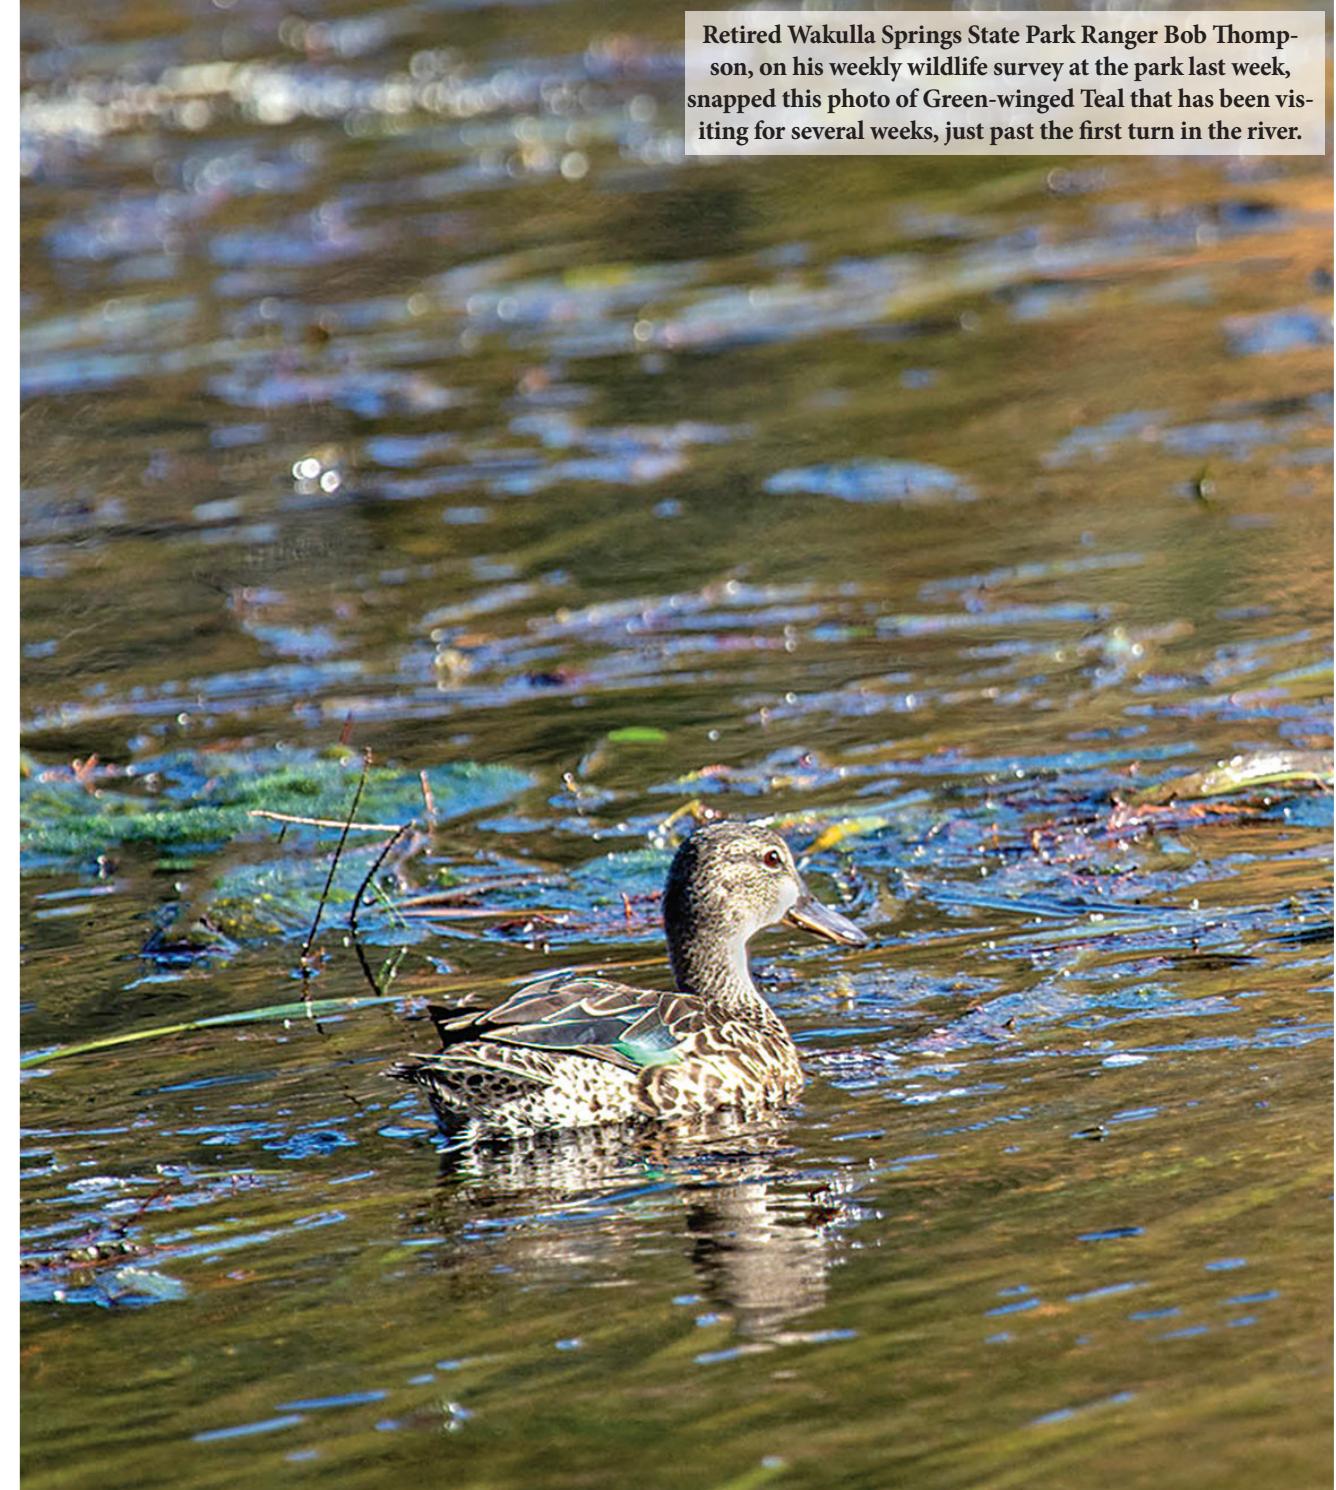

And maybe she'll have her very own gun. Maybe she'll be able to guard her chickens, and go hunting for her family.

Maybe she'll be one who can protect her family from harm.

Some day.

SEA PANSY
(Renilla mulleri)

A sea pansy is a soft coral colony of polyps adapted for living in turbulent water. The colony can independently inflate/deflate the anchoring stalk or plumed top. When conditions are calm the colony inflates so all the polyps can feed on plankton. If currents are strong, the top deflates, and the stalk inflates, to avoid being swept away. If attacked, the top inflates, the stalk deflates and it catches a current to float away. Sea Pansy's are bioluminescent, glowing softly greenish at night.

Finding hope this holiday season

By SHERYL H. BOLDT

is a chronic emotional struggle, this may be a sad Thanksgiving for you.

Years ago, I suffered with chronic depression that resulted in multiple hospitalizations. I understand some of what you're experiencing. I know firsthand the darkness and hopelessness depression brings so I'd like to share a few thoughts.

First, don't believe the lie that no one cares. Sometimes people say all the wrong things and lose patience with your timetable for overcoming depression.

They don't mean to be insensitive. Truth be told, I often fall short when dealing with others' ongoing struggles – even though I battled depression for years.

Second, I'd like to suggest something you've probably heard before, especially from your church friends: Pray. If someone has said this, you've probably felt frustrated. You have prayed – and prayed and prayed. But since friends and family aren't able to provide everything you need at this time (as much as they'd like to), consider going, once again, to Someone Who is bigger than your depression.

Cry out to God – even if you've cried out more times than you can count. Tell Him about your sadness, disappointments and fears. Tell Him you're scared you'll never get better, and how you've already worn out everyone around you. Shut everything off, spend time with God and allow your heavenly Father prove His inexhaustible compassion for you.

Hebrews 4:16 (ESV), one of my favorite verses, offers a lot of encouragement: "Let us then with confidence draw near to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need."

Draw near to the throne of grace – with confidence.

God is fully aware of your reality. He will listen for as long as you need Him to. You can't wear Him out. He longs to tell you He loves you, over and over again. Especially now.

Spend as much time as you need reading God's Word, talking to Him and allowing His Word speak to your heart. Displace the darkness by focusing on Him. When you meditate on God's Word, you'll rediscover how much your heavenly Father loves you.

You can survive depression. You can experience true hope. I pray you find that hope this holiday season.

Thankful for the blessings

By CHERYL CRUCE

reasons for thanksgiving as family members arrive from different destinations.

I am thankful every day for the blessings I receive – husband, home, children, grandchildren, and warmth of family. I am grateful for my community, church, and friends; my puppy snuggled beside me. I am thankful for the breath of life and the restoration of the soul. My thanksgiving list is an unending collection of good happenings accumulated over a lifetime.

Where does this moment find you? Thanksgiving is a day set aside to remember the blessings of grace afforded to us by the Lord. What are you most thankful for?

If we were to compare lists, we would find similar items, reflecting who we are. We all desire the pleasures and comforts of life, such as home and family warmth. The holidays are a joyous time that reminds us to count our blessings.

Nevertheless, as cheerful as the season may be, the festivities are often dampened by the loss of a loved one or a life-altering illness. Somewhere there is a soldier who longs to be home with family and a family who longs for a soldier. Everywhere we look, people are cold, hungry, and homeless. These struggles of life are also an inventory of who we are. What do we do when the table and the faces in our home do not look like the Publix commercial? How do we count our gains when Hallmark reruns remind us of our losses?

We count our gains by realizing heartaches will come our way, and even though life changes, our hope remains in the Lord. The Lord draws near the broken-hearted and saves those who are crushed in spirit (Psalm 34:18). We only need to trust in Him and lean into His understanding, not our own (Proverbs 3:5-6). We do not have to be brave all the time. There is nothing wrong with allowing yourself a time of longing for a loved one. Jesus cried at the tomb of His friend Lazarus. When we are in our weakest moments, it is the strength of the Father that carries us. He gives His angels charge over us, lifting us above the stones of life (Psalm 91:11).

If you find yourself struggling with the holiday, allow the Father's love to become your greatest comfort. Our Lord often sent angels to care for His children, trust in His presence today. If you find strength in His word, then become the angel, and strengthen your brother or sister through the gift of prayer and presence.

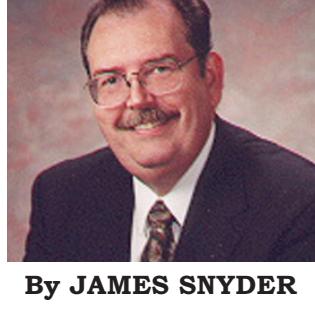

Mother Theresa said, "Not all of us can do great things. But we can do small things with great love." We have so much to be thankful for. What small thing can you do today that can become a great thing for someone else? It doesn't take much to be the encouragement needed. The simplest gestures can change a person's perspective. You can become God's conduit of grace to someone who is struggling. Be that small thing with great love that is needed.

Enter his gates with thanksgiving and his courts with praise; give thanks to him and praise his name. The Lord is good, and his love endures forever; his faithfulness continues through all generations. Psalm 100:4-5

OUT TO PASTOR

By JAMES SNYDER

six months; this was my one-year anniversary.

Of course, I had forgotten about that appointment so all my plans were put in my back pocket to save for some other time.

The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage offered to drive me to my appointment, and because it was at 11 o'clock, she made plans for lunch. I was completely okay with that; the only problem was we would have to go in her Sissy Van.

It was only to the doctor's office and then to lunch, so that shouldn't be too long. I don't like riding in that crazy little Sissy Van in which the seating is so tiny my knees are in my face the whole trip. I figured it was only a short time, so I could handle it.

We arrived at the doctor's office just before 11 o'clock, I signed in and waited for the doctor.

While there, I remembered why doctors call us "patients." It takes great patience to wait for the doctor to call you into his office. My appointment was at 11 o'clock, and by 11:40, the nurse finally called me into his office.

I was worried because it was getting close to lunchtime, and I never want to be late for lunch.

I spent about a half-hour with the doctor while he checked my vitals and then said,

Obituaries are on Page 12 this week

"You're good. Everything seems excellent."

I asked him, "Could I have that in writing with your signature?" I wanted someone in our house to know I was "good."

After making plans for my next appointment, we left and got back into that little Sissy Van on our way to lunch. It takes me as long to get into the Sissy Van as it does the doctor to examine me. Oh boy.

Finally, we were on our way to lunch. She wanted me to go with her to a diner she and her daughters discovered a little while back. I was all in for that, and we had a nice time eating lunch.

Then, back in the Sissy Van, and, as I had hoped, we would be on our way home. I was getting tired of kissing my knees in traveling.

"You know what," my wife said as we drove out of the parking lot. "I need to stop and pick up a piece of jewelry that's ready for me at the mall."

Looking at me, she said, "You don't mind if we stop there, do you? After all, we go right by it. It won't take long."

I was okay with that, but I wasn't going to go in because by the time I could get out of the Sissy Van, she could have gone in, picked up her jewelry, and come out. So I stayed in the Sissy Van.

She returned, and driving out of the parking lot, we passed one of her favorite stores. Something along the lines of Tuesday Morning, whatever that might be. And she said, "While we're here, I think I should go in and pick up some things I need for my craft room."

Again, I stayed in the Sissy Van, kissing my knees while waiting for her to return.

She got back into the van, and driving down the street, we stopped at one of her favorite thrift stores. I wouldn't say this out loud, but her favorite thrift store is the one she's shopping at the moment.

We continued visiting thrift stores for the rest of the afternoon, and I was trapped in that silly old Sissy Van.

We finally got home, and it took me some extra time to extricate myself from that Sissy Van. As I got out and stood up, my knees were wobbling, but I did reach the front door, got inside, and headed for my easy chair.

The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage brought all her shopping goods in from the Sissy Van and put them on the dining room table.

She looked at me with a big smile and said, "That was a wonderful day. Wasn't it?"

In thinking about my adventure I was reminded of what the Apostle Paul said. Ephesians 4:2-3, "With all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love; Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

This unity is something I work at with the help of the Holy Spirit.

Use the News

1. That Spells Help

Throughout the United States, people do many different things to help needy families. In the state of West Virginia, a food bank collected thousands of cans of food to set a world record — and it helped the needy at the same time. The record set by the Mountain Mission food bank in the city of Charleston was for the most cans used to spell out a word. The word was "Mountaineers," and the food bank used 25,550 cans to form it in front of the State Capitol building, UPI News reported. "Mountaineers" is the name of teams competing for West Virginia University and is sometimes used as a nickname for the early settlers of the state located in the Appalachian Mountains. The food bank's effort easily topped the previous record for cans used to spell a word, which was set by the SpartanNash company of Grand Rapids, Michigan, when it used 5,791 pieces of packaged food to spell out its own name. West Virginia Governor Jim Justice said the food used in the food bank's record-breaking effort will be donated to feed West Virginia families during the holidays.

Many organizations provide help to families in need during the holiday season. In the newspaper or online, find and closely read a story about a group that is doing this. Use what you read to write a letter to a friend, telling what this group is doing, why that is important and how you, your school or your community could help the group in its efforts.

Goals: Citing specific textual evidence when writing or speaking to support conclusions; producing clear and coherent writing in which the development, organization and style are appropriate to the task.

2. What a Treasure!

People who use metal detectors always are hoping they will find buried treasure with their high-tech devices. Detectors discover metals underground by sending out electronic signals that cause beeps when they hit metal objects. In the European nation of England, a man using a metal detector on a country walk found a gold diamond wedding ring buried in the mud — and it may be worth as much as $50,000. The ring found by 69-year-old David Board dates back more than 600 years and is believed to be the wedding band given by a wealthy man to his wife when they were married, CNN News reported. The band features two strands of yellow gold woven together with a diamond set into the metal. It is in "stunning" condition, Board said, and inscribed in French with words that translate "I hold your faith, hold mine." It is in "almost perfect condition," according to the Noonans auction house, which will put the ring up for sale on November 29. Finding buried treasure is an unexpected kind of good fortune. In the newspaper or online, find and closely read a story about someone else having good fortune that they did not expect. Write a paragraph telling how you would respond if you had the good fortune experienced by the person in the story. Compare stories as a class and discuss.

Goals: Conducting short research projects that build knowledge about a topic; engaging effectively in a range of collaborative discussions; responding thoughtfully to diverse perspectives, summarizing points of agreement and disagreement.

3. Pooches on the Move

Founded in 1877, the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show is the oldest in the United States and the second oldest sports event of any kind in the nation. For most of its history, it has been held at Madison Square Garden in New York City, home of the New York Knicks and Rangers sports teams. The coronavirus epidemic forced the show to an outdoor estate in Tarrytown, New York, for the last two years, but next year it is coming back to New York City. Westminster officials have announced the show will take place next May at the home of the famous U.S. Open tennis tournament in New York's Queens neighborhood, the Associated Press news service reported. The dogs and their trainers will compete at the Billie Jean King National Tennis Center named for the pioneering women's tennis pro. Dogs at Westminster face off in agility, obedience and breed-by-breed competition. A best-in-show award is presented on the final night of judging. At this year's show, 211 breeds competed, with a bloodhound named Trumpet taking the best-in-show honor for the first time in the breed's history. At shows like Westminster, dogs are judged not only for their appearance but for their agility and obedience skills. In the newspaper or online, find and closely read a story about another sport or activity in which competitors need more than one skill to succeed. Use what you read to write a personal column telling what skills are needed for success in this activity and why they are important. Include which of these skills you have, if you like.

Goals: Writing opinion pieces on topics or texts, supporting a point of view with reasons and information; reading closely what a text says explicitly and to make logical inferences from it.

4. The Oldest American

With better health care and more active lifestyles, senior adults are living longer and longer in the United States and around the world. No American now alive has lived longer than Bessie Hendricks of Lake City, Iowa. A former school teacher, Hendricks just turned 115, and celebrated with her children, one of whom just turned 90. She was born in the year 1907 and has seen 21 U.S. presidents in her lifetime, along with two world wars, the invention of television, the first space flights and the growth of the Internet. She said hard work and love of family were the keys to her long life. "She's always cared about her family," her son Leon said. "She always did that. Family came first to mom. Always." Older Americans are often in the news for remarkable activities and achievements. In the newspaper or online, find and closely read a story about one older American in the news. Pretend you are a news reporter and write out three questions you would like to ask this person about being successful at an advanced age.

Goals: Reading closely what a text says explicitly and to make logical inferences from it; citing specific textual evidence when writing or speaking to support conclusions.

5. Big Ben, Big Bongs

The Great Clock and Bell Tower known as Big Ben have long been a landmark in the city of London, England. Residents and visitors alike looked forward to hearing the clock's Great Bell toll the hours, but for the last five years Big Ben has been silent except for special occasions due to a $95-million renovation project. Now Big Ben has come back to life, and its bell will bong the hour and quarter-hours every day for all to hear. The renovation of the last five years has been the longest the clock and bell have been mostly silent since they were put in place 163 years ago. The bell only rang at very special occasions, such as the funeral of Queen Elizabeth II in September, when it rang 96 times, once for each year of her life. During the renovation the 25,000-pound clock mechanism was taken apart, and more than 1,000 separate parts were cleaned and repaired, the Washington Post newspaper reported.

The clock's return to service was welcomed by Londoners. "Marvelous, wonderful," one said. "Been a long time." Landmarks are special features of communities that people love to see or enjoy. In the newspaper or online, find and study a story or photo about a landmark in your community or state. Use what you find to write a short editorial telling why the landmark is special to the community and how it makes people feel.

Goals: Writing informative/explanatory texts to examine a topic and convey ideas and information clearly; conducting short research projects that build knowledge about a topic.

To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

FSU shoots up the polls after 49-17 win over Louisiana

By BOB FERRANTE
Editor/The Osceola

After a chaotic Saturday in college football, Florida State has moved up in the polls.

The Seminoles (8-3) are ranked 16th in the coaches' poll, up from 20th a week ago. The Associated Press rankings will also release on Sunday afternoon, and the College Football Playoff rankings will be revealed on Tuesday night (FSU was 19th last week).

On Saturday, FSU was in cruise control in a 49-17 win over Louisiana. But there were upsets across the country, with South Carolina knocking off No. 5 Tennessee 63-38 and Georgia Tech stunning No. 13 North Carolina 21-17 among the most notable. Southern Cal escaped with a 48-45 win over UCLA in a top 20 matchup, while No. 12 Oregon defeated No. 10 Utah 20-17.

FSU will wrap up the regular season on Friday against Florida (6-5). If the Seminoles defeat the Gators, they could be in line for one of the top bowl games — potentially the Gator Bowl against an SEC opponent in Jacksonville or a New Year's Six game if some of the teams ranked ahead continue to falter.

Some early bowl projections are out with more to come in the next few days. Jerry Palm of CBSSports.com has FSU headed to Charlotte to face South Carolina in the Duke's Mayo Bowl.

NEXT UP: FSU hosts Florida at Doak Campbell Stadium on Friday, Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m. on ABC.

John Michael 'Mike' Carter

John Michael "Mike" Carter, 80, of Crawfordville, passed away at his home with loving family Nov. 16, 2022.

He was born Feb. 11th, 1942, at the Dale Mabry field hospital in Tallahassee. Mike lived with gusto from the beginning – hunting, fishing, and gallivanting around the Big Bend. He and his family moved to Jacksonville when Mike was 12, where the fun continued!

He was a leader throughout his school years, holding various positions as a student body president, captaining many clubs and civic organizations, and excelling as a student athlete. Mike played basketball, was a champion diver, and played football as a powerful and dynamic running back. A true "Renaissance man" it was on the shores of Lake Ellen in Wakulla County, around a campfire one night, that Mike realized the power of the written word. He discovered the book Walden Pond by Henry David Thoreau, and for the rest of his life, had a great reverence for learning and nature. The woods and water were his home.

Mike graduated from Robert E. Lee High School in Jacksonville, in the class of 1960. He loved his high school classmates, helping to plan and coordinate many reunions over the decades. Upon graduation, he worked as a garbage man in Yellowstone National Park, before enrolling at the University of Florida. He spent one semester at UF before he was off again – this time traveling to New York City where he worked as a mechanic, then earned his seaman's license and began working on ships. Aboard a freighter to France, he made a new plan. Disembarking, he enrolled at the University of Madrid for a year, before returning to the U.S. to graduate from the University of Florida with a degree in Latin American Studies.

With the assistance of his grandfather Jerry W. Carter, a prominent Florida politician, and Gov. Leroy Collins, Mike gathered letters of entry into numerous Central and South American countries. Forever thrifty, he began saving his money. Interrupting a history lecture one day, he offered to buy his professor's old motorcycle. Within the year, he was touring Latin America on the BMW. Mike kept incredible journals of all his travels, mailing his writings home to his parents periodically. He rode his motorcycle through cities and villages, making friends and recording what he saw. During his 13 month trip, he spent the most time in Brazil, believing he might even live his life there. When he returned to the U.S., he taught seventh grade history. Mike went from testing limits, to grading tests – a period in his life where he "never drank so many martinis."

A new plan was formed... Mike enrolled at Cumberland Law School of Samford University in Alabama graduating in 1970. While in law school he earned his Master's in history. He referred to law school as one of the best experiences of his life. He won awards for his skill in oratorical arguments and was admitted to the Florida and Georgia Bars. While living in Georgia, he married and welcomed two beautiful twin daughters, Andrea and Julia. In Atlanta, Mike worked as Assistant District Attorney, handling over 342 felony cases. He also worked as legal house counsel for the Life of Georgia insurance company. Craving adventure again, Mike began his plans for an even bigger international journey. In 1973, he backpacked throughout Europe, Africa, India, and Asia on a budget of $3 a day. He again mailed home letters and journal entries. He climbed Mount Kilimanjaro, swam in the waters of Victoria Falls, climbed the ruins of Greek and Roman civilization, danced in the Taj Mahal by moonlight, touched the walls of temple and shrine. He spent nights at fancy diplomatic parties, nights in jails, but mostly, he spent nights under the stars in the jungles, deserts, hills, mountains, plains, in the woods, and on the water that he loved. After a year and a half abroad, he returned to the U.S., 40 pounds lighter and ready to settle down.

The President of his law school knew of two jobs for Mike – one out in Alaska which never panned out, and one in Tallahassee. Mike began practicing law at a Tallahassee firm but was soon moved to a new branch the firm was starting in Wakulla County. Mike's mother, Maxine Smith, had relatives in Sopchopy, and his parents had owned property around Lake Ellen for decades. When the law firm decided to close their Wakulla branch, Mike bought the building. In 1975, he began his own private law practice. Located directly across the street from the Courthouse in Crawfordville, he could represent his clients and file his motions, then slip over to Lake Ellen for duck hunting before the sun went down. Mike designed and built an eccentric yet altogether commodious bachelor pad high in the trees. His permed afro, bright green eyes, his love for the outdoors, and razor wit won him many friends.

Mike threw himself into Wakulla County civic life. He was a founding member of the Wakulla Men's Association and remained active in the Optimist Club to the end. He served on the Board of the Wakulla County Historical Society, was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, and helped compile the history of Wakulla County for the Wakulla Bicentennial Exhibition. Mike helped to entrust the property for the Sopchopy Myron B. Hodge City Park, and donated his legal services to help numerous churches, non-profits, and community organizations. It was an early morning meeting of the Wakulla Optimists where Mike first met Andrea. In 10 minutes, he knew. Four years later in 1982 (Andrea needed time to consider) they married at Friendship Baptist Church in Medart.

By this time, Mike was serving as Wakulla County Judge. He earned the nickname "Landslide Carter" in 1978 when he won his first election for the judgeship by 2 votes. After all, he'd won by double the votes necessary – you'd only need one to win. He served three terms as County Judge, continuing his civic roles in the community. He was the Recreation Department's Easter Bunny, a neighborhood Santa Claus, hosted Brain Brawls, Spelling Bees, and spoke to history classes at Wakulla High School.

Mike and Andrea had three daughters, Maria, Elena, and Lucy. His daughters Andrea and Julia came back into his life, and so, there he was – surrounded by women. Naturally, in any spare time, he was out in the woods or on the water. In 1990, Mike returned to his law practice. He became a soccer dad, science project dad, performance dad, and always a hunting and fishing dad. His devotion to Andrea was boundless. He was her consummate teammate in her career and her passions as an educator in Wakulla County.

In 2007, he retired from the practice of law. In retirement, he and Andrea sailed most of the major lakes in the U.S. Mike loved sailing and would trailer his 26 foot MacGregor "The Vision" to any destination. He loved camping, fishing, and rafting in the mountains of North Carolina, and enjoyed excursions out West. He once owned a covered wagon. He'd eat his fish with scales on. His bucket list was long, and at the end, his bucket was full. Mike lived the biggest life.

He is preceded in death by his parents, Maxine Smith Carter and Robert Gordon Carter; by his siblings, Frances Hollified "Holly" Carter, Robert Timothy "Tim" Carter; and by his daughter, Julia Ellen Carter.

He is survived by his beloved wife, Andrea Faza Carter; and his daughters, Andrea P. Carter-Mundel (Sam Mundel), Maria Carter (Aurelia Aubert), Elena Myhre (Rick Myhre) and Lucy Carter. His two grandsons, Bobby and Chesley Myhre, are the boys he always wanted. His chocolate lab, BC, remained devoted to the end.

Mike was a founding Board member and former President of the Wakulla Academic Boosters. The organization, a passion of Mike and Andrea's, endows and awards scholarships to deserving Wakulla County students. Tax-deductible contributions may be made to Wakulla Academic Boosters Inc. at wakullaacademicboosters.org. Checks may be mailed to P.O. Box 448 Crawfordville FL 32326.
